

Conflict Management for people working in the Bio Health sector: Network Evening

19 June 2007

4.00 – 6.00pm

The Nowgen Centre
29 Grafton Street
Manchester, M13 9WU

Conflict management skills are needed by everyone who wishes to understand the exact behaviours that present problems in the work environment. Successful conflict management avoids reduced productivity and high stress levels, makes sure resources are not wasted and helps improve the morale of your organisation.

Topics covered : definition of conflict, cost of conflict, facts about conflict, benefits of good conflict management, cycles of behaviour and behaviour types and key stages in managing conflict alanboyd consultants has developed a series of leadership management training specifically for people working in biotechnology or life science industries, designed to address issues faced in this unique and the highly specialised field. Come along for a taster session for the full training course, learn some basic conflict management skills and network with other professionals from your field.

Cost: FREE Refreshments will be provided

To book: Contact the events team at Nowgen
T: 0161 276 5956 email: bookings@nowgen.org.uk
Or book online: www.nowgen.org.uk/events